

Ken August

Ph: 310-430-4563

Kenneth211@earthlink.net

---

- I watch so much reality t.v. these days that the other day I was singing in the shower and I voted myself out.
- Suzanne Somers is going to be out here to tell us what's sexy about menopause. Now this should be a good lesson for the guys out there. Cause a lot of men didn't know there was anything sexy about menopause. I mean, the word itself means, "Men...Stop!"
- Well, 71 year old Rupert Murdoch and his 35-year-old wife are expecting their 2nd child shortly. With a 71-year-old husband and a newborn baby on the way, Murdoch's wife should be able to save money by buying diapers in bulk.
- When I was younger I had a friend named Dave, who happened to be Chinese. Well, I guess he didn't just happen to be Chinese... Both his parents were Chinese so the odds were probably pretty good.
- What I want to know is, What do fish drink? And does it taste watery?
- I'm a little scared of Botox. You're actually injecting yourself with botulism to paralyze the nerves. You see my philosophy is, any disease that I don't want to catch; I try to not inject directly into my face.
- Have you heard the rumor that J. Lo is pregnant? It's not confirmed though. It's possible she was just walking backwards.
- I've always found that the best cure for PMS is to just get the heck out of the house... Of course, that only works for the guys.
- Why is firewood expensive? Doesn't it grow on trees?
- Did you hear about the nude flight that went from Miami to Cancun the other day? As soon as the plane reached cruising altitude, all 87 passengers took off their clothes. The only rules were that the crew had to remain dressed and they decided not to serve any hot tea or coffee. Although it did seem that they had plenty of nuts. I also heard that one man was arrested for refusing to get out of the "Full and Upright" position.
- Did you know that Whoopi Goldberg's real name is Caryn Johnson? Well that makes sense. I never really thought she looked Jewish.

- So Lionel Ritchie's estranged wife is asking for a thousand dollars a month for laser hair removal. It shouldn't cost Chewbacca a thousand dollars a month on hair removal! I don't care if my wife grows a beard like ZZ Top. A thousand dollars a month is ridiculous. How about you grab a razor for a buck ninety-nine? I actually heard that the only hang up in the proceedings so far is that both parents want the other one to claim custody of (their daughter) Nicole.
- So Joy Bauer is here and she's going to tell us what foods will actually increase or decrease your chances of making a baby. For instance no soft cheese. Apparently when trying to make a baby; soft is bad.
- Frank Marino, the world famous Joan Rivers impersonator will be out here shortly. Frank has actually had numerous plastic surgeries to help get that Joan Rivers resemblance. Which is ironic because so has Joan Rivers.
- Did you hear that they're in the process of turning Donald Trump's The Apprentice into a Broadway musical? That's good. That's just what Trump needs, more publicity. I wonder who's gonna play his hair. Is Benji still alive?
- Did you hear about the former American Idol contestant who claims that he had an affair with Paula Abdul, while he was on the show? Which is interesting cause I didn't know that you could do that as your talent. But if it's true, he definitely picked the right judge to have an affair with. Cause the other ones are way too critical.
- I think the real reason that Paris Hilton wanted to date a guy named Paris was so that she can scream out her own name during sex.
- You know you're in Los Angeles when the Top News Story of the day is "Lindsay Lohan gets into a car crash! She has no injuries, but she did look fabulous while exiting the dented car. Look at those shoes! If you're gonna crash, you want to crash in shoes like that. Back to you Jim."
- Did you hear what Nick Cage and his wife named their new baby boy? They gave him Superman's birth name, Kal-el. Kal-el Coppola Cage. Once again proving that celebrities will sometimes get their children mixed up with their pets. Cause if you want to give Superman's birth name to your Labrador Retriever that's kinda cool. But to name your son Kal-el...I mean I'm sure they'll call him Cal. But I don't know if he'll be able to hear them over the other kids laughing at him. Although his son will probably be in a school with kids named Apple so it might not be that bad. I mean I love Star Wars but I'm not going to name my next child, Darth Baby. Well, probably not.

- So it seems that Nick and Jessica are breaking up. You know it wasn't a bad run for a Hollywood couple, though. They made it three seasons. That's not bad for a relationship in this town. Now I don't want to say that I saw this coming but I heard that MTV had already booked 2 seasons of their new show, "Nick and Jessica; The Divorcees".
- So I just took my daughter Samantha to the zoo the other day. You know you're getting old when it takes you two days to recover from going to the zoo. But Samantha had a great time though. Her favorite things to see were the monkeys, the turnstile that we went through to get in and the man cleaning the kangaroo cage. Samantha was pointing at the man in the kangaroo cage like, "look at that thing daddy." Yes honey, that's a "Persona Cleanicus." Cause you know how they like to write the Latin name of the animal on the card first. Like, Oh it's a "sapia... a sapia gara.. a sapia gara...Look honey it's a monkey."
- I was on line at a coffee shop the other day and the woman behind me looks at me and says, "Hey I know you. I'm sorry, I can't remember your name though. I'm great with faces but horrible with names." Well is there any way to be great with names, but not with faces? I mean does anyone ever say "You don't look familiar to me, but I think your name is Jim."
- A friend of mine, for work, had to take a class on power tool safety. So he comes back from class one day and happens to mention to me that his instructor only had three fingers. The man teaching power tool safety... is missing two fingers!!! Not a good sign. I understand that you want to get a teacher with experience, but I think the key here is to find someone with SUCCESSFUL EXPERIENCE. How do I know that if he still had his fingers he wouldn't keep slicin' them off every time he used the same tool? I don't. I don't want a man with one leg who's been bitten by a shark to teach me how to avoid sharks. That guy can teach me how to swim with one leg if he wants, but not how to avoid sharks.
- I saw an article the other day about Michael Jackson that had a group of pictures all laid out in chronological order. Starting from when he was a little kid all the way up to when he started looking like a cast member of the Lion King. But the thing I want to know about Michael Jackson is not how many plastic surgeries he's had. But why, with all his money, he can't find a good plastic surgeon. There are plastic surgeons in Hollywood that could make me look like "Rerun" from What's Happening; yet Michael Jackson's nose is barely hanging on. His nose is almost an "inny", at this point. He can probably smell what he's thinking.